Representative Matters

Motive Power Inc. v. ABB Inc. Lead counsel in complex commercial arbitration conducted in June 2022 before a panel of AAA arbitrators in New York City. Represented international supplier of AC traction components incorporated into diesel locomotives utilized by Canadian transit agency. Defended all company witness depositions and presented key fact and expert witnesses at the arbitration.

Correct RX Pharmacy v. Cornerstone Automation Systems, No. 3:15-CV-3006-N, 2018 WL 10396249 (N.D. Tex. Apr. 16, 2018) Linda Woolf and Rick Barnes tried this fraud and negligent misrepresentation claim to a Texas federal jury for a Maryland institutional pharmacy wronged by a Texas supplier of automation software and equipment. After a two-week trial, the jury found the manufacturer liable for negligently misrepresenting its ability to provide a crucial automation system for the pharmacy's operations, causing millions in out-of-pocket losses. A Fifth Circuit panel unanimously upheld the trial court, ultimately yielding a $3.7 million recovery; its published opinion held that the Texas economic-loss doctrine did not preclude the pharmacy's recovery. 945 F.3d 423 (5th Cir. 2019)

Weinstat v. Dentsply International. Linda Woolf and Rick Barnes led the trial team that successfully defended dental device manufacturer in a three-week class action trial in San Francisco Superior Court. The plaintiffs had challenged the adequacy of warnings for Class II prescription medical device, alleging violations of the California Unfair Competition Law and breach of express warranty. After a full bench trial, the court found in defendant's favor on all counts. The California Court of Appeal affirmed the victory in a published decision

Center City Periodontists, P.C. v. Dentsply International, Inc., --- F.R.D. ---, 2017 WL 3142119 (E.D. Pa. July 24, 2017) Linda Woolf was part of the Goodell DeVries team that, in 2017, successfully defeated a motion for class certification filed against the same dental device manufacturer in a decade-long class action in Pennsylvania federal court. The 36-page memorandum opinion, which followed six days of hearings on the motion to certify, denied class certification on a multitude of bases. The district court judge found that the plaintiffs failed to meet three of the four requirements under Rule 23(a): typicality, adequacy, and numerosity and Rule 23(b) (3)'s requirements that common questions of law or fact predominate over individual questions and that a class action is superior to other available methods for adjudicating the dispute. The court further agreed with Goodell's argument that the proposed class and subclasses were not objectively ascertainable and granted the Daubert motions to exclude the plaintiffs' economic damages and FDA regulatory experts. In 2013, the team had obtained dismissal of claims for negligence and alleged violations of the New Jersey Consumer Fraud Act. That opinion, 2013 WL 3956284, is believed to be the first to hold that the NJCFA does not apply to the sale of prescription medical devices, which are not 'merchandise' available to the public under the Act.
